The Commercial Bank.

This enterprising banking institution has recently installed a new book-keeping machine which they tell you about in another column, and they also invite you to come in and look the machine over. It is getting so now that we do almost everything by machinery and we suppose it is well and of course all live concerns must keep up to the minute in all the improved devices, but somehow we are just a little old-fashioned and still hold to the doctrine that there should be something left for man to do, and yet, as we said, the hustling business men of this day must keep pace with all the new devices, and this must be a great machine and we would be pleased to have you go in and take a look at it. The officers and employees of the bank are still still there and we suppose they will still pass on papers for discount by themselves and not by the machine. At any rate, this is one of the progressive and successful institutions of this section of the state and they keep abreast of the times. They make money for their stockholders and they are accommodating and obliging to their customers and will take good care of any funds you leave with them.

Mr. Byrd Gibson has gone to Andrews to spend the winter with his sister, Mrs. John Grant.

Mrs. Geo. Chapman and Miss Jessie Chapman of Columbia and Mr. Tom Saudemayer and family of Chapin have been visiting Mrs. John Sease.

One of the most interesting social events of the season was a linen shower given by Miss Effie Hawkins, November 9, in honor of Miss Isoline Wyche, one of the season's brides-to-be. The house was artistically decorated with roses, chrysanthemums and pot plants. The color scheme, pink and white, being very tastefully shown in decorations. The guests were received in the reception hall and then invited into the parlor, where tables were laid for the game of hearts. At the conclusion of the game Miss Hawkins very gracefully presented Miss Wyche with a dainty pink and white crepe de chine handkerchief as the winner of a "real heart."

Little Misses Frances Bedenbaugh and Rosallen Quattlebaum served delicious sweet course to the guests. The color scheme was here, too, very artistically shown in the refreshments and the little girls' frocks.

From a "cozy corner" Mrs. O. B. Simpson poured hot coffee. After partaking of these refreshments, the guests were invited into the reception hall to drink from the "miniature well," around which clung ivy and moss, the bride-elect drawing the water. The bucket proved to be a basket filled with dainty pieces of linen, gifts from the guests, the younger friends of Miss Wyche.

Miss Wyche's marriage to Mr. Goggans of Columbia is looked forward to with much interest, owing to the wide popularity of both parties.

An Old Marble.

Mr. J. Henry Dorroh of near Bush River church, has in his pocket a marble which he has carried continuously for 50 years—has not missed a day nor a night that the marble was not with him, in fact, he says, when he has his pants on you may know that marble is in one of his pockets. The only time it was ever out of his possession was many years ago when he lost it in the road near Saluda river. He and a friend, Sim Crouch, had been in bathing and after they had dressed and walked up the road from the river a couple of miles Mr. Dorroh missed his marble. He stopped right still and with the same tremor in his voice as if he had lost priceless jewels, he said: "Sim, I've lost my marble." "Well," said Sim, "we'll go right back and look for it until we find it."

ATTENTION!

Farmers, Merchants and Cotton Buyers:

This is to let you know that we are building another warehouse to store your cotton in order to help you get a much higher price. We thought we would build only one section, but before its completion it is full. So many friends and customers want storage for their cotton we have decided it is our duty to provide this.

We feel sure you will get a much better price by holding and not putting so much cotton on the market at once.

You know that practically the entire world is against the Southern Farmer when it comes to the price of cotton. They sell, and sell, and keep selling cotton futures in order to keep spot cotton down.

Don't get frightened, just keep your nerve, selling contracts does not get spot cotton. Don't we all know that 70 per cent of the crop has been ginned, and if this is the case we will not make over ten and one-half million bales.

Bring us your cotton to weigh and store and we will give you a bonded warehouse receipt and you can borrow money at 6 per cent from any of our Banks. You can then pay your accounts and not sell the cotton.

We appreciate the share of good business you have given us, and ask you to bring us your cotton thereby helping us and helping yourselves.
